

Trail History

Named for Teddy Banta, the trail was the first created by Redlands Conservancy which took advantage of an existing Bridle Path Easement established in the mid-1900s. Teddy Banta passionately advocated open space and trails in Redlands, and was unrelenting in her determination to preserve as much open space as she could. The trail cuts across one corner of her former property. This historic trail traverses Hermit's Canyon, named for a "hermit" who lived in the area in the early 20th century. He dug tunnels into the hills, looking for a viable water source which he could then sell to the City of Redlands. Alas, he never found water, but he left a legacy of living on the fringe on a rugged land.

Trail Description

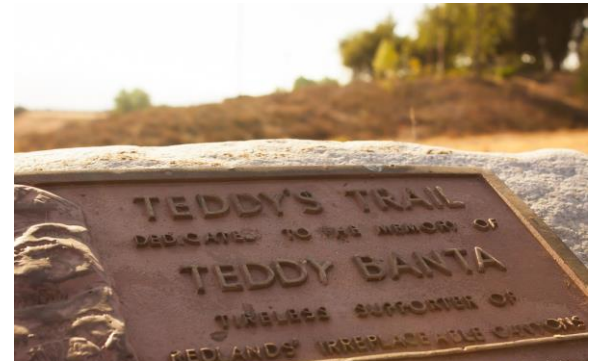

Teddy's Trail is a ½ mile trail. It heads down a small canyon from Helen Court then back up a small canyon to Sunset Drive. It can be made into a loop by walking back east on Sunset then South on Helen Court back to the trailhead. The trail is a single track with gradual down and uphill.

Note: All distances are approximate.

Please visit cityofredlands.org or redlandsconservancy.org to view or download our complete collection of trail maps and brochures.

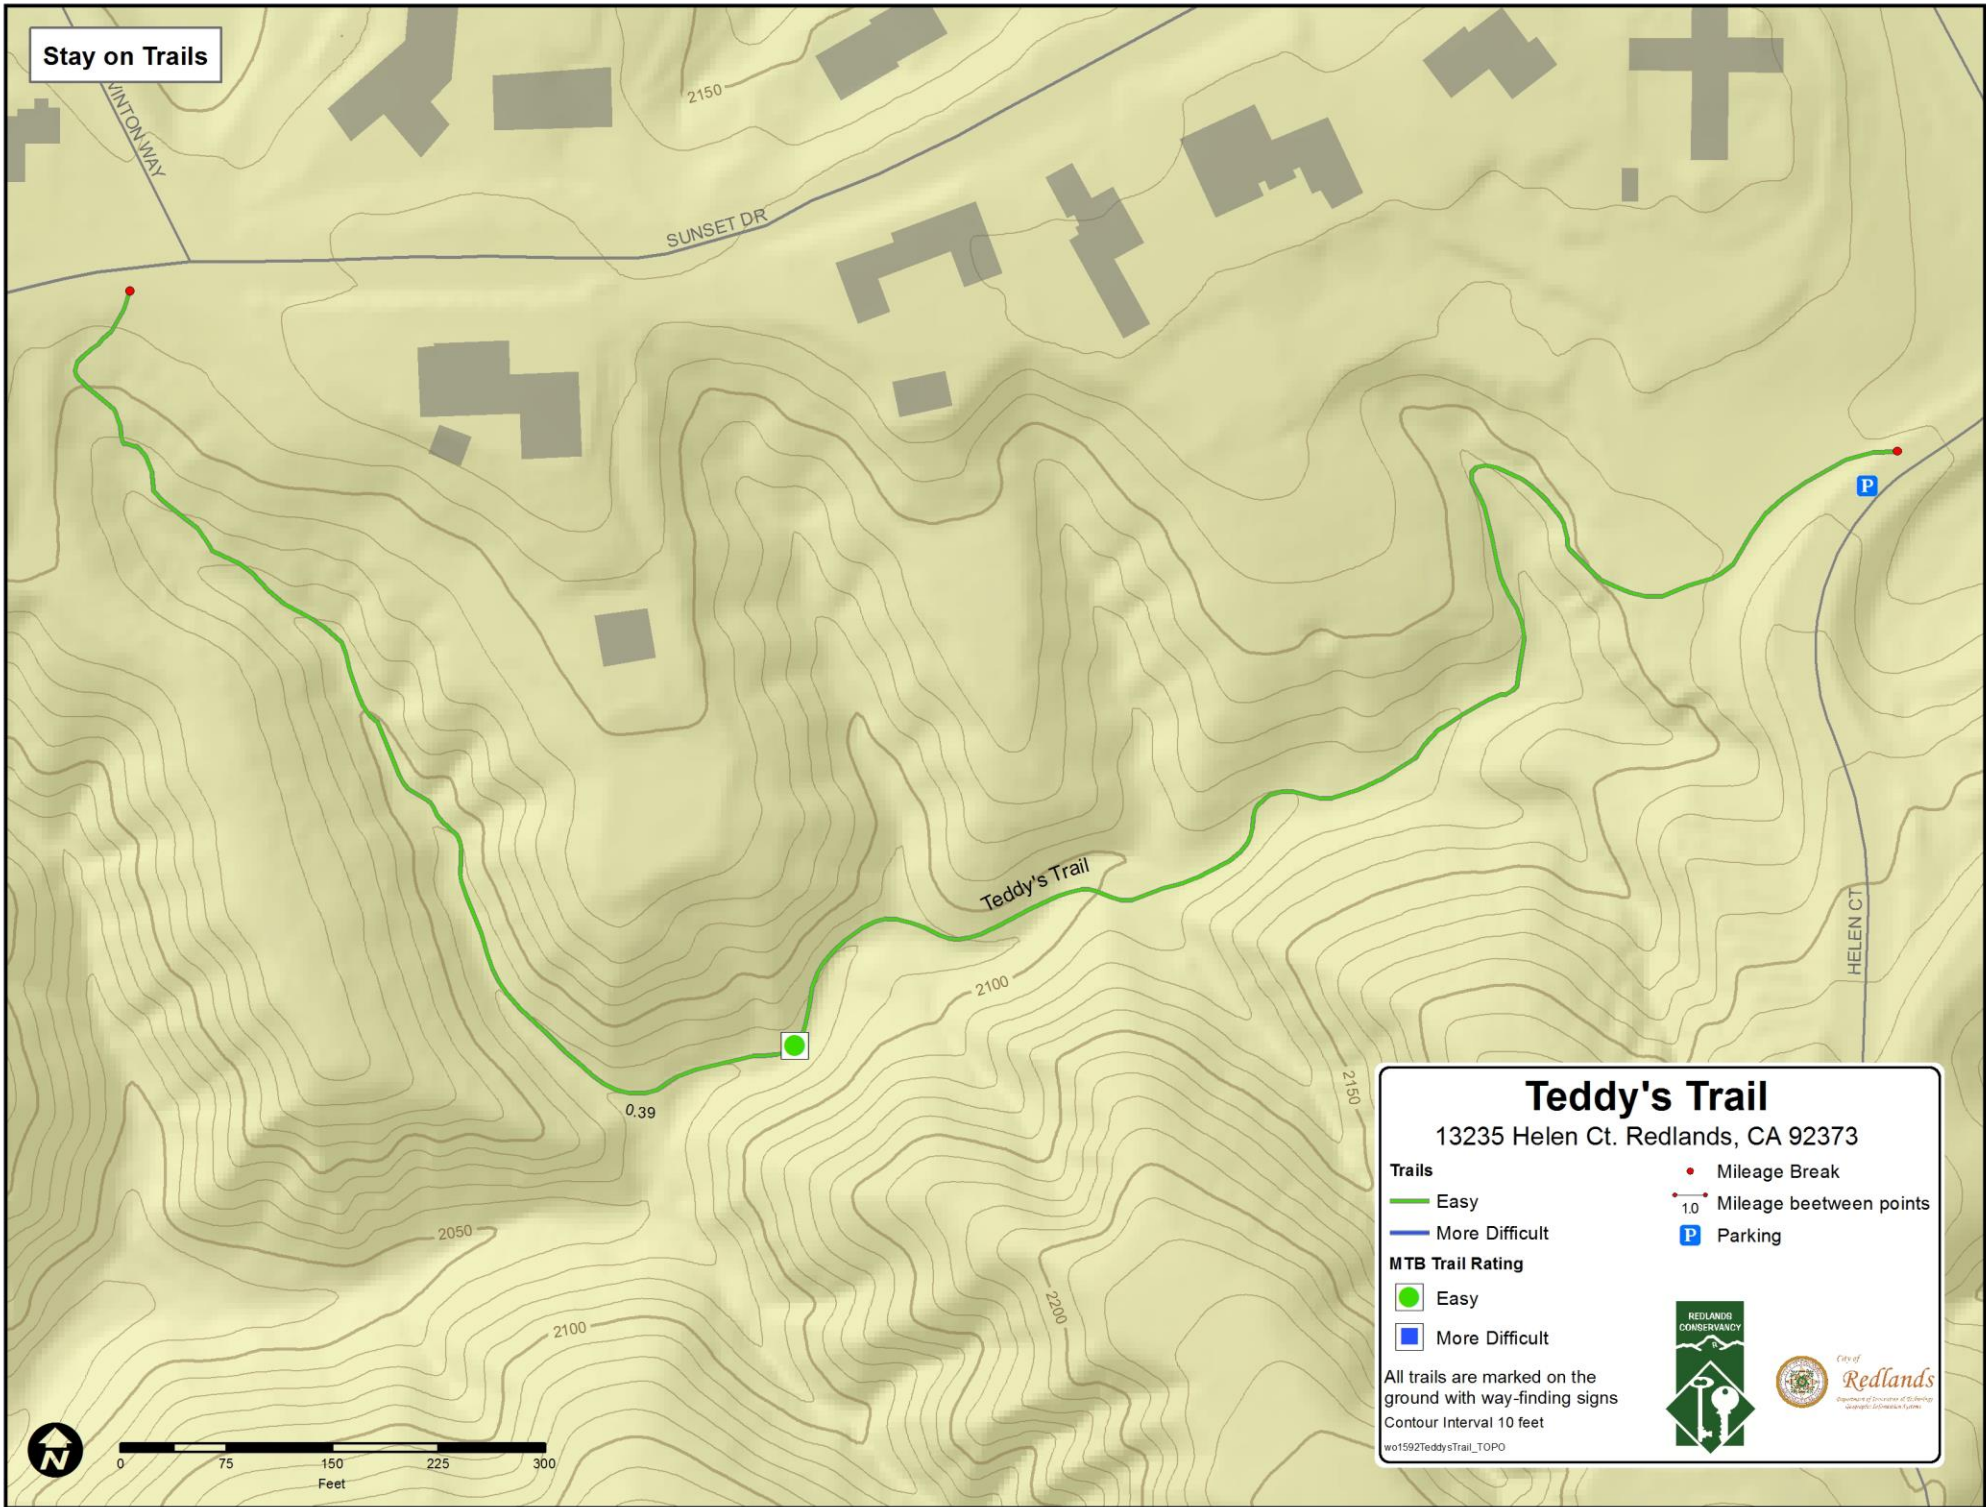

Redlands Conservancy
PO Box 855
Redlands, CA 92373
redlandsconservancy.org

Teddy's Trail

Information & Trail Map

Stay on Trails

Teddy's Trail

13235 Helen Ct. Redlands, CA 92373

- Trails
- Easy
- More Difficult
- MTB Trail Rating
- Easy
- More Difficult
- Mileage Break
- 1.0 Mileage between points
- P Parking

All trails are marked on the ground with way-finding signs
Contour Interval 10 feet

w01592Teddy'sTrail_TOPO

